ted to the Dominican Republic, nor formally charged there, it was not necessary to go through extradition proceedings to bring him to the United States, Justice Department officials said.

United States marshals who were Mr. Wilson's unannounced companions on the flight placed him under arrest when the plane landed at Kennedy Airport, officials said.

Justice Department officials said that the Marshal Service took part in the operation because officials of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, two agencies that played key roles in the investigation of Mr. Wilson, had declined to participate. Those agencies contended that they considered the plans "too risky." Mr. Smith, the Attorney General, said the Marshal Service was given the assignment because it had jurisdiction over fugitives.

Mr. Wilson was led before Magistrate A. Simon Chrejn in Federal Court in Brooklyn after his arrest. At the 25-minute hearing, Mr. Wilson was described by prosecutors as "intelligent and resourceful."

At the recommendation of the Government, Magistrate Chrejn set bail at $20 million. He scheduled the second hearing, at which the transfer of Mr. Wilson to Washington, where he was indicted, will be discussed. Federal authorities said Mr. Wilson would be held overnight at an undisclosed location in the New York area.

Justice Department officials said he would be formally arraigned in Washington after he was transferred there, probably later this week. Officials said that they hoped to bring Mr. Wilson to trial, although they acknowledged that his access to secret information and involvement in covert operations over the years might present problems.

CIA RENEGADE SEIZED, HELD ON $20M BAIL

THE renegade ex-CIA agent accused of training terrorists in Libya was nabbed yesterday as he landed at Kennedy Airport and held on $20 million bail — the highest ever set in Federal Court in New York.

Edwin Wilson, a fugitive from justice since his indictment in 1980, was hauled off the jetliner in handcuffs by U.S. marshals following his arrival in New York from the Dominican Republic.

He was traveling with an Irish passport under the alias Phillip McCormack, it was learned.

There was one report that Wilson was set up and betrayed by somebody very close to him.

The turncoat lured Wilson from his haven in the Libyan capital of Tripoli with the promise that a new sanctuary could be arranged in the Caribbean or Central America.

A high Justice Dept. source predicted: "A lot of guys at the CIA will be shaking tonight in fear over what Wilson might tell us."

He said the department would consider making a deal with Wilson in return for his cooperation in investigating other CIA conspirators.

Last night, informed sources told The Post that Wilson had received several death threats and was taken to an undisclosed location as a precautionary measure.

By JERRY CAPECI and CHARLES LACHMAN

The arrest was announced in Washington by Attorney General William French Smith and capped a two-year international manhunt.

Wilson — indicted for training terrorists with Green Beret accomplices and selling explosives and detonators to Libyan strongman Col. Muammar Khadafy — stood before U.S. Magistrate Simon Chreïn with bowed head and beads of sweat on his face in the air-conditioned courtroom in Brooklyn.

He wore a rumpled blue pin-stripe suit and needed a shave.

The magistrate set the mind-boggling bail of $20 million after saying that the six-foot-four Wilson was a man of "extraordinary resourcefulness."

U.S. marshals have been on Wilson's trail for several days since learning he was traveling under the name McCormack and tracked him to Western Europe.

Yesterday morning, Wilson flew from an unidentified European nation to the Dominican Republic. Authorities were alerted and denied Wilson entry, detaining him at the airport in Santo Domingo.

Five minutes before departure, Wilson was informed that he was being placed on a jetliner bound for the U.S.

He didn't offer any resistance, but said: "I don't have a visa to get into New York."

"Don't worry," the Dominicans answered, "they'll take you."

Two U.S. marshals were on the flight and had Wilson under surveillance, officials said.

Asst. U.S. Attorney Lawrence Barcella, who flew in from Washington to be at the arraignment, said Wilson owned "tremendous assets," including a farm in Virginia worth up to $12 million.

Fugitive Former Spy, Lured Out of Libya, Arrested at Kennedy

By PHILIP TAUBMAN

Edwin P. Wilson, a fugitive former American intelligence agent, was arrested by Federal agents in New York City yesterday after being snared in an international trap set by the Justice Department.

Mr. Wilson is charged with illegally shipping explosives to Libya and other crimes. Federal prosecutors have also asserted that he developed a terrorist training program in Libya where he has been living since 1980.

Attorney General William French Smith announced in Washington that Mr. Wilson was arrested by United States marshals at Kennedy International Airport yesterday afternoon after he arrived from the Dominican Republic.

Mr. Wilson was taken to the United States Courthouse in Brooklyn, where a Federal magistrate set bail at $20 million and ordered him held overnight in New York pending the arrival of his lawyer. A court proceeding is scheduled for today.

Mr. Wilson, who appeared weary and resigned, was led into the court in handcuffs. Standing well over six feet, with thinning gray hair, he was dressed in a dark business suit. At the hearing, he was surrounded by Federal agents and prosecutors. He spoke only briefly, saying his lawyer, John A. Keats, was coming from Washington.

The capture ended a year-long effort by the Government to catch Mr. Wilson by luring him out of Libya, where he lived and conducted a variety of businesses, including international arms sales and the provision of Western personnel and matériel to Libya.

Mr. Smith said that the Dominican authorities, who had been alerted to Mr. Wilson's travel plans by the United States, placed him on the nonstop flight to New York this morning after they found that he was traveling on an illegitimate Irish passport, in the name of Philip McCormick. Mr. Smith said Mr. Wilson offered no resistance.

Federal officials said that Mr. Wilson had left his haven in Libya to travel to the Dominican Republic in the false belief, apparently cultivated by associates who were secretly cooperating with the Justice Department, that he would be given sanctuary there.

Terpil Apparently in Beirut

Frank E. Terpil, another former American intelligence agent who was indicted with Mr. Wilson in 1980 on a range of charges including conspiracy to commit murder and the illegal export of military articles, remains a fugitive. Mr. Terpil apparently lives in Beirut, Lebanon, where he recently reappeared after a long absence, according to Federal law enforcement officials.

Justice Department officials said today that the activities of Mr. Wilson and Mr. Terpil and their associates remained under investigation by Federal grand juries in several American cities and that additional indictments were likely this summer.

The case has involved mystery and dispute since it first came to the attention of the Government in 1976 when an associate of Mr. Wilson, Kevin

P. Mulcahy, told the authorities that Mr. Wilson was shipping explosives to Libya.

After several false starts, at least five Federal agencies became involved in the investigation and determined that Mr. Wilson, who had worked as a covert agent for the Central Intelligence Agency, and Mr. Terpil had made a deal in 1976 with Col. Muammar el-Qaddafi, the Libyan leader, to sell their expertise in intelligence and military matters to Libya.

Terrorist Training Involved

As part of the arrangement, according to the indictment, the two helped establish a program for the manufacture of bombs and the training of terrorists, recruiting American ordnance experts and former Army Special Forces troops to serve as instructors.

The Central Intelligence Agency has repeatedly denied playing any role in the Libyan operation. Federal prosecutors are investigating the possibility that several senior officials at the agency, who had worked closely with Mr. Wilson while he was an agent, gave tacit approval to the plans in hope that it would produce intelligence information for the Government.

More recently, Mr. Wilson was reported to have recruited former American and British military pilots and mechanics to help fly and maintain Libyan planes and helicopters. Some of the men involved said last year that in 1980 they participated in a Libyan military intervention in Chad, a neighboring North African nation.

Mr. Wilson also shipped sensitive American electronic equipment, including parts of classified weapons systems, to Middle Eastern countries, according to Federal investigators and former associates.

Efforts to catch Mr. Wilson began in earnest last year. Justice Department officials said today. Several plans that involved efforts to get him to leave Libya were aborted when he became suspicious, these sources said.

The plan that ended with Mr. Wilson's arrest began to unfold several months ago, Justice Department officials said. Working closely with several men trusted by Mr. Wilson, the department planted the idea that he would be welcomed in the Dominican Republic.

Apparently weary of his austere life in Tripoli, the Libyan capital, Mr. Wilson showed an interest in moving to the Caribbean island, law-enforcement officials said. As time passed, he was told by his associates, whom the Government declined to identify, that the Dominican Government would assure his security and give him free rein to operate his businesses. Officials would not say whether the Dominican officials were involved and actually gave Mr. Wilson such assurances.

Presumably confident, Mr. Wilson left Tripoli several days ago on his way to the Dominican Republic, with brief stops in Switzerland and Madrid. Law-enforcement officials said that Mr. Wilson, traveling under an assumed name on the Irish passport, never left the international zone of the two European airports. He made several calls to bankers while in Switzerland, they said.

He Was Being Shadowed

In Madrid, Mr. Wilson, who was being shadowed by marshals, boarded Iberia Airlines flight 945 for Santo Domingo, the Dominican capital.

After arriving there at 4:40 A.M. yesterday, Mr. Wilson was detained in the international zone of the airport by the Dominican authorities. Just before 9 A.M., the scheduled departure time for Dominicana Airlines flight 902 to New York, Mr. Wilson was notified that his travel documents were not in order, and he was placed aboard the nonstop flight to the United States.

Because Mr. Wilson was never admit-

EDWIN P. WILSON
... bail set at $20 million

Ex-CIA Agent Edwin Wilson Lured From Libya, Arrested

By Joanne Omang
Washington Post Staff Writer

Federal agents arrested fugitive ex-CIA agent Edwin P. Wilson as he stepped from a plane in New York City yesterday, closing what one law enforcement official called "a spider's web" around the man charged with aiding terrorists worldwide.

Looking disheveled but stoic after a night of travel from Europe and the Dominican Republic, Wilson was ordered held in lieu of $20 million bond at government request, an amount the judge said was unprecedented.

Wilson, 53, had been a fugitive since April, 1980, when he and Francis E. Terpil, another former CIA agent, were indicted in Washington on charges of providing Libyan dictator Muammar Qaddafi with explosives, terrorist training and assassination services.

Terpil remains at large, and was last reported living in Beirut. The two allegedly used their CIA connections to set up an international arms business in the early 1970s, supplying terrorists and government clients with explosives, terrorist training and digital timers built to explode a year or more after placement.

They reportedly recruited former Green Beret soldiers to do their training in Libya, and Wilson was called the boss of former Green Beret Eugene Tafoya, who was charged with the attempted murder of a Libyan student in Colorado last year.

Wilson had been living in a luxurious villa outside Tripoli as an adviser to Qaddafi for the past year, and was tricked into leaving the country by "a large covert operation" that "went absolutely perfectly," according to a knowledgeable law enforcement official here.

"He thought he was leaving permanently," the official said. "He was led to believe he was going to a safe haven, and in fact he was being led into a spider's web." Justice Department spokesman John Russell confirmed that account.

Attorney General William French Smith announced the arrest, calling Wilson "a major fugitive from justice" and praising the U.S. Marshals Service for "an outstanding investigative effort."

Wilson left Libya Monday, traveling on a false Irish passport under the name Philip McCormick, the Justice Department said. He made two stops in Europe before arriving around 5 a.m. yesterday in the Dominican Republic, where airport authorities had been warned that he was coming.

"He was under surveillance the whole time," the law enforcement official said, adding that to name the European countries would endanger agents there.

Jeff Harris, a deputy associate attorney general, said Dominican authorities told Wilson in customs that his papers were insufficient to enter the country.

They held him in a secure area, then put him on a nonstop, regularly scheduled flight to New York, telling him his destination just five minutes before the plane took off.

"He told the Dominicans he didn't have a visa for the United States," Harris said. "They told him he didn't have to worry about that."

Two federal agents were on the plane by pre-arrangement, but Wilson was not arrested until the plane landed at Kennedy International Airport in New York, Smith said.

At the arraignment in U.S. District Court in Brooklyn, the 6-foot-4 Wilson stood impassively as federal prosecutor E. Lawrence Barcella described him as a "very intelligent and very resourceful" man with "tremendous access to wealth" and 20 years' experience in intelligence work.

Bail of $500,000 set at the time of indictment would be inadequate, Barcella said, given Wilson's 2,400-acre farm near Upperville in Fauquier County, Va., and two million-dollar properties in England.

The prosecutor revealed for the first time that he had spoken with Wilson once in person and at other times on the telephone in the past two years.

The law enforcement source said that the Justice Department would consider reducing charges against Wilson, "as is done in any case," in return for useful information, provided it is well-corroborated. "He surely knows a lot," the source said.

Douglas M. Schlachter Sr., a third ex-agent charged in 1980, surrendered last year, offering cooperation. He pleaded guilty in February to a reduced conspiracy charge.

The House Intelligence Committee is investigating possible links between Wilson and Terpil and CIA agents who might have had contact with them in the 1970s.

The CIA repeatedly has denied any official involvement with the men's operation, disciplining two employees it said had dealt secretly with the pair.

A bail hearing and a proceeding to remove Wilson to Washington are set for today.

Special correspondent Jerry Capeci contributed to this article.

Ex-Spy Lured From Libya and Caught in U.S. Trap

The capture ended a year-long effort by the Government to catch Mr. Wilson by luring him out of Libya, where he lived and conducted a variety of businesses, including international arms sales and the provision of Western personnel and matériel to Libya.

Mr. Smith said that the Dominican authorities, who had been alerted to Mr. Wilson's travel plans by the United States, placed him on the nonstop flight to New York this morning after they found that he was traveling on an illegitimate Irish passport, in the name of Philip McCormick. Mr. Smith said Mr. Wilson offered no resistance.

Federal officials said that Mr. Wilson had left his haven in Libya to travel to the Dominican Republic in the false belief, apparently cultivated by associates who were secretly cooperating with the Justice Department, that he would be given sanctuary there.

Terpil Apparently in Beirut

Frank E. Terpil, another former American intelligence agent who was indicted with Mr. Wilson in 1980 on a range of charges including conspiracy to commit murder and the illegal export of military articles, remains a fugitive. Mr. Terpil apparently lives in Beirut, Lebanon, where he recently reappeared after a long absence, according to Federal law enforcement officials.

Justice Department officials said today that the activities of Mr. Wilson and Mr. Terpil and their associates remained under investigation by Federal grand juries in several American cities and that additional indictments were likely this summer.

The case has involved mystery and dispute since it first came to the attention of the Government in 1976 when an associate of Mr. Wilson, Kevin

P. Mulcahy, told the authorities that Mr. Wilson was shipping explosives to Libya.

After several false starts, at least five Federal agencies became involved in the investigation and determined that Mr. Wilson, who had worked as a covert agent for the Central Intelligence Agency, and Mr. Terpil had made a deal in 1976 with Col. Muammar el-Qaddafi, the Libyan leader, to sell their expertise in intelligence and military matters to Libya.

Terrorist Training Involved

As part of the arrangement, according to the indictment, the two helped establish a program for the manufacture of bombs and the training of terrorists, recruiting American ordnance experts and former Army Special Forces troops to serve as instructors.

The Central Intelligence Agency has repeatedly denied playing any role in the Libyan operation. Federal prosecutors are investigating the possibility that several senior officials at the agency, who had worked closely with Mr. Wilson while he was an agent, gave tacit approval to the plans in hope that it would produce intelligence information for the Government.

More recently, Mr. Wilson was reported to have recruited former American and British military pilots and mechanics to help fly and maintain Libyan planes and helicopters. Some of the men involved said last year that in 1980 they participated in a Libyan military intervention in Chad, a neighboring North African nation.

Mr. Wilson also shipped sensitive American electronic equipment, including parts of classified weapons systems, to Middle Eastern countries, according to Federal investigators and former associates.

Efforts to catch Mr. Wilson began in earnest last year. Justice Department officials said today. Several plans that involved efforts to get him to leave Libya were aborted when he became suspicious, these sources said.

The plan that ended with Mr. Wilson's arrest began to unfold several months ago, Justice Department officials said. Working closely with several men trusted by Mr. Wilson, the department planted the idea that he would be welcomed in the Dominican Republic.

Apparently weary of his austere life in Tripoli, the Libyan capital, Mr. Wilson showed an interest in moving to the Caribbean island, law-enforcement officials said. As time passed, he was told by his associates, whom the Government declined to identify, that the Dominican Government would assure his security and give him free rein to operate his businesses. Officials would not say whether the Dominican officials were involved and actually gave Mr. Wilson such assurances.

Presumably confident, Mr. Wilson left Tripoli several days ago on his way to the Dominican Republic, with brief stops in Switzerland and Madrid. Law-enforcement officials said that Mr. Wilson, traveling under an assumed name on the Irish passport, never left the international zone of the two European airports. He made several calls to bankers while in Switzerland, they said.

He Was Being Shadowed

In Madrid, Mr. Wilson, who was being shadowed by marshals, boarded Iberia Airlines flight 945 for Santo Domingo, the Dominican capital.

After arriving there at 4:40 A.M. yesterday, Mr. Wilson was detained in the international zone of the airport by the Dominican authorities. Just before 9 A.M., the scheduled departure time for Dominicana Airlines flight 902 to New York, Mr. Wilson was notified that his travel documents were not in order, and he was placed aboard the nonstop flight to the United States.

Because Mr. Wilson was never admitted to the Dominican Republic, nor formally charged there, it was not necessary to go through extradition proceedings to bring him to the United States, Justice Department officials said.

United States marshals who were Mr. Wilson's unannounced companions on the flight placed him under arrest when the plane landed at Kennedy Airport, officials said.

Justice Department officials said that the Marshal Service took part in the operation because officials of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, two agencies that played key roles in the investigation of Mr. Wilson, had declined to participate. Those agencies contended that they considered the plans "too risky." Mr. Smith, the Attorney General, said the Marshal Service was given the assignment because it had jurisdiction over fugitives.

Mr. Wilson was led before Magistrate A. Simon Chreïn in Federal Court in Brooklyn after his arrest. At the 25-minute hearing, Mr. Wilson was described by prosecutors as "intelligent and resourceful."

At the recommendation of the Government, Magistrate Chreïn set bail at $20 million. He scheduled the second hearing, at which the transfer of Mr. Wilson to Washington, where he was indicted, will be discussed. Federal authorities said Mr. Wilson would be held overnight at an undisclosed location in the New York area.

Justice Department officials said he would be formally arraigned in Washington after he was transferred there, probably later this week. Officials said that they hoped to bring Mr. Wilson to trial, although they acknowledged that his access to secret information and involvement in covert operations over the years might present problems.

Fugitive Former Spy Lured Out of Libya, Trapped at Kennedy

By PHILIP TAUBMAN

Edwin P. Wilson, a fugitive former American intelligence agent, was arrested by Federal agents in New York City yesterday after being snared in an international trap set by the Justice Department.

Mr. Wilson is charged with illegally shipping explosives to Libya and other crimes. Federal prosecutors have also asserted that he developed a terrorist training program in Libya where he has been living since 1980.

Attorney General William French Smith announced in Washington that Mr. Wilson was arrested by United States marshals at John F. Kennedy International Airport yesterday afternoon after he arrived from the Dominican Republic.

Mr. Wilson was taken to the United States Courthouse in Brooklyn, where a Federal magistrate set bail at $20 million and ordered him held overnight in New York pending the arrival of his lawyer. A court proceeding is scheduled for today.

Mr. Wilson, who appeared weary and resigned, was led into the court in handcuffs. Standing well over six feet, with thinning gray hair, he was dressed in a dark business suit. At the hearing, he was surrounded by Federal agents and prosecutors. He spoke only briefly, say-

Justice Aides Back Legality of Trap for Wilson

By JEFF GERTH

Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, June 16 — Justice Department officials today defended the legality of the international trap that led to the arrest Tuesday of Edwin P. Wilson, the fugitive former intelligence official.

Mr. Wilson, charged with illegally shipping explosives to Libya and other crimes, was arrested at Kennedy International Airport after he arrived on a flight from the Dominican Republic.

He had been detained by Dominican officials, who placed him on the flight to New York without going through normal extradition procedures.

Mr. Wilson was lured out of Libya on a ruse and was shadowed on flights to the Dominican Republic by United States marshals. Dominican officials were alerted that Mr. Wilson was traveling on a bogus Irish passport. They stopped him in the international section of the Santo Domingo airport and held him until he could be put on the flight to New York.

Question of Arrival Ignored

The Justice Department officials observed that the Supreme Court had ruled that while a defendant must receive due process in the United States, the Court would not address the question of how the defendant came into the country.

The officials cited a 1952 case, Frisbie v. Collins, in which the Supreme Court reaffirmed an 1896 ruling that stated, "The power of a court to try a person for a crime is not impaired by the fact that he had been brought within the court's jurisdiction by reason of a 'forceful abduction.'"

In a brief appearance in Federal District Court in Brooklyn this morning, Mr. Wilson waived his right to a hearing on his removal to the District of Columbia, where he was indicted in 1980.

Federal law-enforcement officials, citing security precautions, would not disclose the timing of Mr. Wilson's transfer or his whereabouts.

In the next few days, Mr. Wilson will be arraigned in Federal District Court in Washington, the first step in a legal fight that is likely to touch on sensitive information and raise complicated legal issues.

'A Great Adventure,' Lawyer Says

"We're at the start of a great adventure, if it goes to trial," John A. Keats, a lawyer from Washington representing Mr. Wilson, said in Brooklyn today.

Some Federal officials are concerned that intelligence agencies may make prosecution of Mr. Wilson difficult by attempting to shield information. Many of the items mentioned in the 1980 indictment of Mr. Wilson concern other former American intelligence agents.

Frank E. Terpil, a former agent who was indicted with Mr. Wilson for the Libyan activities, remains a fugitive, apparently in Beirut, Lebanon, according to Federal authorities.

The case may result in the first important test of the Classified Information Procedures Act of 1980, which established ways of dealing with defendants who threaten to disclose secret information unless the Justice Department drops the case. Such threats are known in legal circles as "graymail."

Private Hearings Possible

The law requires defense lawyers to notify the court in writing of secret information the defendant wants to use in a trial. If the Government objects to disclosure of some of the information, the court, under the law, can hold a private hearing, in the judge's chambers if necessary, to decide on its admissibility.

To avoid disclosure of sensitive information, the judge may take a number of steps, such as allowing the defense to use summaries or edited versions of secret documents in the trial.

Mr. Wilson has not yet responded formally to the charges against him, but in interviews he has denied wrongdoing.

Mr. Keats said that Mr. Wilson was likely to challenge his bail, which was set at $20 million Tuesday by a Federal magistrate after prosecutors described the former Central Intelligence Agency employee as "intelligent and resourceful." He originally fled the country while he was under investigation.

JUST THIS MORNING, I READ IN THE NEWSPAPERS THAT THE JUSTICE DEPARTMENT HAS SEIZED FORMER CIA AGENT EDWIN P. WILSON. IN THE WORDS OF ATTORNEY GENERAL WILLIAM FRENCH SMITH, IT WAS THE "CONCLUSION OF AN OUTSTANDING INVESTIGATIVE EFFORT".

THUS, AFTER A YEAR-LONG EFFORT BY OUR GOVERNMENT, WILSON WAS FINALLY LURED INTO THE TRAP. HOWEVER, LOOKING OVER WILSON'S RECORD, ONE CANNOT HELP BUT BE IMPRESSED BY HIS PAST PERFORMANCE, EVEN THOUGH, AT THE PRESENT TIME HE IS HELD IN LOW ESTEEM. THE SAME AMOUNT OF EFFORT HAS NOT BEEN EXPENDED BY THE JUSTICE DEPARTMENT FOR ITS APPREHENSION OF VERSATILE SOVIET AGENTS, SO BUSY AT WORK HERE, IN OUR OWN COUNTRY. I CAN'T REMEMBER THE LAST TIME YOU CAUGHT ONE. NO DOUBT, THE JUSTICE DEPARTMENT FELT THAT IT WOULD BE EASIER TO APPROACH WILSON THAN TO CONFRONT A SUPERIOR SOVIET AGENT.

BE THAT AS IT MAY; MY PRESENT POSITION DOES NOT ALLOW ME TO BE TOO CRITICAL. PLEASE INFORM ATTORNEY GENERAL WILLIAM FRENCH SMITH, THAT I AM LOOKING FORWARD TO MEETING HIM "FACE TO FACE" - REAL SOON. THANK YOU, FRANK TERPIL".
